We Mourn the Loss of Profits.

GREAT FIFTY CENTS ON THE DOLLAR

SALE OF CLOTHING

We are going to make some improvements in our store room after January 1st. The contract is signed and sealed with the contractors—consequently we are compelled to sell our stock or pack it away. We prefer selling it at a sacrifice.

NOTHING RESERVED

Every suit of Clothes, every Overcoat, every Pair of Pants marked in plain figures. We will split them in half. This means 50 cents on the dollar. The cheapest sale of fine ready made Clothing in Kentucky.

Our business is not conducted by fakes and guessing schemes. The man that's selling watch chains on the street corner for $1, throwing in a watch just to show his generosity, needs watching. "Bunco Steers," "Rattle Dangle" tricksters and green goods sharps always promise great returns from small investments. Intelligent minds are on to the racket, and take no stock in such humbuggery. 'Tis value they want.

100 CENTS WORTH OF GOODS

FOR 100 CENTS IN CASH

Is what we give the people. But at this sale

100 CENTS WORTH AT 50 CENTS ON THE DOLLAR!

Every article in our establishment is ticketed at the lowest price possible. The stamp of durability is on every garment. If you have not dealt with us, ask your neighbor, who has. We invite you to our store, feeling assured that you will be pleased with our garments and satisfied with the matchless values we offer.

TO THE VOTERS

Of the Tenth Congressional District.

The sudden striking down at his post of duty of the lamented Mr. Kendall will render it necessary for the Democrats of this Congressional District to hold, at a very early day, a convention to nominate a candidate at the special election to fill the vacancy. It is not yet known when nor where this convention will be held, but the time will necessarily be short, and it will be impossible for any candidate to see all the people. I take this method of announcing my candidacy to you. Clark county has always been content to render her valiant service to whomsoever her sister counties might put forward for this great office. Only once 'as she had an aspirant, and he did not succeed to the nomination. Her people feel that after all these years of fidelity to the chosen sons of other counties they have some claims which the Democracy of the district will recognize.

Situated as we are at the very gateway to all the district, there is not one county in all the sisterhood, in the development of which we are not deeply and vitally interested, and I promise, if elected to this great position, that I will waste no opportunity which offers to develop and build up this magnificent domain of counties.

The great work so ably, faithfully and industriously undertaken by the dead Congressman ought to fall into hands that will earnestly carry it forward to its legitimate completion. The beautiful symmetry of his work ought to be preserved to the end. No local prejudices ought to be allowed to mar any of the undertakings which he had put forward in behalf of any person or community. I promise that if elected I will earnestly labor to finish his work—not spoil it.

As to my Democracy and faithfulness to my party I refer you to the people of my own county who have honored me with the most important county office in their gift by probably the largest majority ever given in the county. I have stood in the midst of every political fray since I became a voter, and have unfalteringly offered battle to every enemy of Democracy and the people. I have never failed to heed the cry of Democratic distress, whether it came from my own people or from those doing desperate battle with the enemy elsewhere.

If elected I will serve the people faithfully, honestly and industriously. I will give them all my time, and the appeal of the humblest dweller in all this district will not go unheeded.

M. C. LISLE.

Judge Lisle Endorsed.

The Clay City Chronicle has the following strong endorsement of Judge M. C. Lisle, of Winchester, for Congress:

"Hon. Marcus Lisle, of Winchester, is being urged by his numerous friends to become a candidate for the seat in Congress made vacant by the death of the lamented J. W. Kendall. Hon. Rodney Haggard, who was among the leading candidates at the convention which nominated Mr. Kendall, has, as we learn, declined to be a candidate, his professional business demanding his entire time. Judge Lisle is one of the most popular and deserving men in Eastern Kentucky, an able lawyer, an upright citizen, and a gentleman in all that the name implies. If the Democracy should select him for its candidate his election is a foregone conclusion. While we are not advised as to why may be before the convention, and have no desire to forestall public opinion, our personal knowledge of Judge Lisle is such as to satisfy us that his party will make no mistake should he be selected as the standard bearer."

OUR LAMENTED DEAD.

The Funeral Cortege—Burial at West Liberty of Hon. J. Wick Kendall.

The remains of our lamented friend, Congressman J. W. Kendall, were accompanied from Washington by the family and Senator Pasco, of Florida; Senator Warren, of Wyoming; Representative Fellows, of New York; Representative Long, of Texas; Representative Belknap, of Michigan; Representative Paynter, of Kentucky; S. S. Yoder, Sergeant-at-Arms, and M. M. Robinson, Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms, and the burial took place at West Liberty on Friday. The funeral cortege, which left Moorehead on Thursday, consisted of hearse, fifteen carriages and fifty horsemen.

J. Wick Kendall was born in Morgan county, June 23, 1834. Like most of the inhabitants of the mountain country, he was passionately attached to the land of his birth, and lived in the same county all his life. His father, Rev. Allen Kendall, moved to Texas many years ago, and died there. Wick Kendall was educated in the common schools of the county, and attended the academy at Owingsville one term. He studied law under the late William Barnes, and was elected County Attorney, and was re-elected at the expiration of his first term.

When the war broke out he espoused the cause of the South, and was Adjutant of the Tenth Kentucky Cavalry, commanded by his brother-in-law, Col. Jack Mays, now of Virginia. Directly after the close of the war he was elected to represent the counties of Morgan and Rowan in the Legislature, and was again elected in 1869. He also served his circuit as Commonwealth's Attorney for six years. He had two sons and two daughters. Mrs. Kendall is a daughter of the late Joe Davidson, of Prestonsburg. She is also a cousin of the lamented Judge John M. Elliott, whose tragic death caused such a sensation a few years ago. Mr. Kendall was twice before within a hairbreadth of securing the Democratic nomination for Congress. Last year he was nominated and elected by a large majority.

A Mournful Record.

No section of the State can show a sadder official record than death has made in Eastern Kentucky, within less than twenty years. First Judge John M. Elliott, of the Court of Appeals, fell dead on our streets at the hands of an assassin, afterwards sentenced to death and later declared insane. Judge Richard Reid, of Mt. Sterling, of the Superior Court, died by his own hand. Senators Joseph Gardner, R. M. Pieratt and John S. Hargis died while in the performance of their official duties. Congressman W. P. Taulbee was killed in Washington; Judge Van B. Young, of the Superior Court, was scarcely at rest in the grave before Congressman J. W. Kendall followed him. It is a mournful record, which all will hope may never be repeated elsewhere.—Frankfort Capital.

Proceedings of the Morgan County Convention.

At a meeting of the Democracy of Morgan County, held in the Court-house in West Liberty, Ky., on March 14, 1892, R. F. Elam was chosen Chairman, and Judge O. J. McKinzie Secretary.

On motion of John P. Salyer the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That we deeply deplore the sudden and untimely death of our beloved, esteemed and distinguished fellow-citizen, John W. Kendall, who was an honest man, a true friend and unwavering Democrat; a faithful Representative of the people, and above and beyond all, a Christian gentleman, who, without a single premonition, met the King of Terror while clad in the whole armor of pure Democracy, of which he was a living exponent in all his walks while in the service of this people their Representative in the Congress of the United States.

Resolved, That we know none more worthy or deserving of the reception of the mantle of the lamented deceased than his bright, genial, energetic and popular son, Joe M. Kendall, of the county of Floyd, who is an equipped, ready debater, a true and faithful Democrat, a sober, discreet and honest citizen, who the Democracy take delight in joining the county of Floyd in commending to the Democracy of this Congressional District as being in every way worthy of filling the unexpired term of his lamented father.

Resolved, That the Morgan Messenger and all the Democratic papers of this Congressional District are and are hereby requested to publish these proceedings.

Resolved, That this meeting adjourn sine die. R. F. ELAM, Chairman.

O. J. MCKENZIE, Secretary.

Death of Hon. J. W. Kendall.

The death of Hon. "Wick" Kendall, Congressman from the Tenth District, which occurred in Washington, caused much regret here in Frankfort, where he was well known. He had but just entered upon his Congressional career, but all reports from Washington agree that he was rapidly becoming familiar with his duties, and bade fair to become an efficient Representative. His death was the result of a stroke of apoplexy, from which he never sufficiently recovered to recognize those about him. His family had accompanied him to Washington, and were with him at the time of his death.—Frankfort Capital.

Still Harping on Capital Removal.

Representative May, of Lexington, last week introduced a bill entitled "An act to remove the seat of government of the Commonwealth of Kentucky from the city of Frankfort and locate it at such place in the Commonwealth as may receive the highest number of votes cast at the general election to be held in November, 1895."

Here is an epitaph which will cause business men to do some thinking: "Here lies the bones of John Jones, Esq., formerly a merchant of this city. He died in the 80th year of his age, loved and respected by all who knew him; but the devil of it was nobody knew him—he didn't advertise."

Success in Walton, Ky.

J. C. Robinson, of Walton, writes: "I have just removed a knot from a horse's leg that was left from a hurt. The leg is now perfectly smooth and natural. I have a very high regard for Quinn's Ointment, which has accomplished the above result."—Sold by Rose & Jones.

GIRLS IN KNICKERBOCKERS.

Fair Femininity Insists on Sometimes Wearing Its Brothers' Clothes.

Ever since Eve put women into subjection and nettled them they have been kicking. Some of their kicks the world has heard of, such as Miss Joan of Arc, who insisted on being Mr. Joan of Arc and wearing the trousers, which women think are the normal form of a man's privileges. Several of these cases the world knows of and others it suspects. It knows very well—though, of course, it doesn't introduce the subject when drinking a cup of tea with a fair one—that girls often dress in their brothers' clothes. In the nineteenth century to dress in one's brother's clothes is to be called a "tomboy," a reformer, and when Maiden Auntie used to "poo-poo" and blush in her 6x4 handkerchief, she now seeks the privacy of her maiden apartments and reveals in the freedom of—she calls them knickerbockers. Eva is Eve nineteenth centuryified, is up to date, and has all the modern improvements. She, of course, added the wearing of trousers to the list of her fads, and when I called the other morning she told me all about it. "His mistress was in," said the lackey, with a smile made up of the recollection of past tips and the anticipation of tips to come.

"My dear," said Eva, rushing up into the seat of the white lilac upon me mingled with that of the violet upon her. "I was just thinking about you (Eva has such an orderly way of thinking) and I want to tell you something. How do you like my dress?"

Eva was gowned very becomingly. She knew the tricks—just learned by us women the other day—of expending all the dressmaker's art upon the skirt and letting the bodice take care of itself. The lines of beauty below the waist revealed themselves equally in action or repose, and Eva was just such a sentimental being as the correct costume loves to turn out. An edge of fur round the skirt rested bewitchingly on the top of her tiny shoes, that peeped out and, not unlike the nose the poet talked about. A dainty pink silk blouse waited, that low fell at the throat, though slightly bound in by a linen collar, completed the toilet. When she stood out from the wrist, and showed a warm, rounded arm. Eva had lost her hair, by love or fever, and it had come in with every hair having a "contrary" opinion of its own.

"Now," said this charming young dandy, "rest you, my love, and drink a cup of chocolate; I'll be with you in a minute."

"Halloo!" cried I, in astonishment, a moment after, "Where did Eva get the new buttons?" And bless me, he's pretty enough to fall in love with. The new buttons was crossing the drawing-room. "What are those buttons?" I asked. "What a end for Eva? all her girl friends will die to visit her soon, and how that boy will be made love to," I thought, as he came nearer. He was arrayed in the richest of corded brown plush knickerbockers, embroidered up the sides with bright-colored silks, and finished at the knees with bows of ribbons. Brown silk stockings, buckled down to the ankles, and down, and were finished with daintily made shoes that somehow looked a bit effeminate. Traveling up again there was an exceedingly girlish—suffered for a moment in all the glorious freedom of knickerbockers; and, when somebody comes in whom I don't know or whom I don't trust, that you saw is put on in an instant, and I would not have cabined, cribbed, confined, bound in.

"But, Eva," said I, weakly, "what about your lover?" "Good gracious," she screamed, "there is Harry. Let me get out of here before he sees me. I wouldn't, oh, I wouldn't, be guessed that he should know about this." And cat dashed the pretty boy, coming back almost instantly, arrayed in the becoming privacy of his skirts, and with no traces of the late outdoor excursions. I caught a lovely, guilty blush upon her cheeks. Harry was announced immediately. As Eva sat down she immediately assumed a tempting little sheepish. Poor Harry, he guessed what a revolution that little skirt concealed. Feeling I was in the third person, plural number, objective case, governed by the imperative necessity of the hour, I said adieu.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

"The smallest boy frequently gets the biggest spanking."

A DEATH STRUGGLE.

Republican Leaders Preparing for a Severe Contest.

The republican party in no other section of the country shows as many signs of terror, not to say panic, as it has been exhibiting in Illinois for some time past. Within sixty days there have been three meetings of the republican state central committee, and two of an organization of republican editors called together in the cabinet of a committee auspices, to agree upon and formulate an editorial party policy, whatever that may be, and to arrange and prepare for the shipment of political plate matter marked "official." At none of these meetings has there been any effort at concealment of the fact that the party is in a critical condition. That fact, indeed, has been stated as the cause for the frequency of the meetings themselves, and in stating it the party orators have urged both perfect harmony and thorough organization as indispensable requisites to the avoidance of disasters. It is strange, in view of this condition of things in the greatest republican state next to Pennsylvania, that democrats who style themselves "practical politicians" should shut their eyes to the inviting conquest of the north-west and insist upon an adherence to the old combination which has so often leveled to dust and so rarely brought success to the party.

Politicians can read with interest and profit the proceedings of all of these meetings of "practical politicians" in the state of Lincoln and Grant. If they read them with wisdom and understanding they cannot fail to see that the party is attempting to deceive that large body of voters who left 1890 on the issue of personal liberty which it had itself raised by its enactment of the odious and un-American temporary restriction law of 1890. In the campaign of 1890, when attacked on their position on the question, the republican leaders made a great show of conviction and courage in refusing to abandon or qualify it. They took democracy enough to believe that they could stampede democrats away from their party by false and pernicious know-nothing cries. The election returns proved conclusively that democrats are always and everywhere foes of oppression and friends of the oppressed, and Illinois republicanism found itself deserted by thousands of men who had thereto contributed to its victories in the state.

Even under defeat these men of many unearned victories failed to comprehend the lesson of their own defeat. They transitory and inconsequential causes what was due to permanent and important ones. When the democrats in the last assembly attempted to replace the restriction law with a law with one more in harmony with popular institutions, the republican majority in the senate united in its opposition and defeated it, leaving in the statutes of the state still the law of force, with all its oppressive features retained, and with the power to close school houses still lodged in the hands of school trustees.

Since that bold defiance of the aroused spirit of freedom in the state the republican leaders have heard something. It is a storm and they know it. They are beginning to have their convictions, but their moral courage has entirely deserted them in the knowledge that a great body of voters whose support has always been necessary to their success is going out of the party driven out, rather by oppression—and that the men who compose it have abandoned the republican party forever, not only on state but national lines.

Republican trepidation, in the face of such a crisis, is expressed by nearly all the speakers in these prayer-meetings now being held in the city. The unanimous expression of the speakers is that the party must "come down." It must abandon its high and lofty attitude and take the back track in the platform soon to be adopted at Springfield. It is desperation which leads men to believe that, having added insult to injury by refusing to even amend it, they must at once take the law passed at another, the republican party can now call back the voters who are leaving it by a hollow and hypocritical platform declaration. It has invited defeat, and it must take it.—St. Louis Republic.

WHAT OF BLAINE?

The Advocate of a "Vigorous Foreign Policy" is Silent.

The war is over, but what has become of the plumed knight, James G. Blaine? The gazette is silent concerning him, and there is no word as to his whereabouts in the field. The war was Tracy's and Harrison's. Mr. Blaine's political stock in trade for nearly twenty years has been an impression in the public mind that he was the yielding advocate of a vigorous foreign policy. He has never done anything but unpack his heart with words, but he is esteemed audacious, and the impression was accepted as the fact. Mr. Harrison does not seem to have discovered that Mr. Blaine is a fighting American. When the time came the great James had been sent to Ben-jamin. The Blaine anchor has gone to the windward as usual. Mr. Blaine may be well pleased with his temporary eclipse. He is cunning. When he saw the situation he resorted to an extreme of protection, he threw out suggestions of reciprocity, and when overwhelming disaster bore upon the extreme protectionists, he was accounted a Solomon for wisdom. There are more than four months to the date of the Minneapolis convention. Machiavelli in the state department counts, perhaps, upon the inevitable reaction in the public mind against the bravado of a president looking for a re-election.

Just what the relations existing between the president and Blaine are the public can only guess. How it is that a candidate for the presidential nomination owing his seat in the cabinet to the favor of the president can remain there passes ordinary understanding. Blaine appears to be a perfunctory officer. The president does not trust him, yet knowing his popularity with the republican party seeks to initiate his methods and blunders, greatly to the satisfaction apparently of the secretary, who stands ready to profit by these blunders.

If Harrison suffers by reason of this political family condition he has himself to blame. Knowing full well the character of Blaine, he has placed him in his cabinet. If, having sowed the wind, he reaps the whirlwind there need be no sympathy for him.—Chicago Times.

AGAINST SUBSIDIES.

The Great Democratic Majority Declares Against Protection.

Corruption and extravagance have been dealt a telling blow in the national house of representatives. The great democratic majority, as it should, has placed its hands fairly and squarely on the side of honest methods and retrenchment in governmental expenses. There is something in the very sound of the words "subsidy" and "bounty" that strikes at the heart of most Americans. Even the incessant beating of tom-toms in praise of this essentially foreign policy has failed to win over to its support even a small contingent of McKimite nominees for congress, which escaped the memorable tidal wave of November, 1890.

Neither Mr. Harrison nor Mr. Blaine, both of whom are known as devotees to the subsidy and bounty heresies, can find food for comfort in the figures of the vote on the Holman resolution opposing the creation of favored classes of every kind. There were recorded in its favor two hundred and twenty-nine votes, while only forty members—less than half the small strength of the republican side of the house—recorded themselves in opposition.

It was a notable success for Mr. Holman and the democratic cause. All attempts to explain away the lack of republican opposition must react upon the heads of the republican leaders in congress. To seek to minimize the significance of that paltry vote of forty is simply to throw the greatest discredit upon the party's alertness and appreciation.

There is great significance in what is a manifest, though silent, revolt in the republican minority in congress against those twin relics of autocratic government, the subsidy and the bounty. Nowhere will this significance be more keenly appreciated than at the white house and in the private office of the secretary of state.—Boston Globe.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and a lasting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Sent for list of testimonials.

HAZEL GREEN, KY.:
FRIDAY, March 18, 1892.

For Congress—10th District.

We are authorized to announce MARCUS C. LISLE, of Winchester, Ky., as a Democratic candidate for Congress from the 10th Kentucky District, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce JO M. KENDALL, of Floyd county, as a Democratic candidate for Congress from the 10th Kentucky District, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

CURRENT NEWS AND COMMENT.

THE announcement of Jo Morgan Kendall, to succeed to the vacancy in Congress caused by the sad and sudden death of his lamented father, meets the approval of not only the Democrats but a host of conservative Republicans as well. Floyd, Elliott, Magoffin, Morgan and Menefee counties have already held conventions and endorsed him, and in the county of Elliott the Republicans also met and complimented him with an endorsement. The impression prevails that the mantle of the lamented father could not fall upon a more worthy man as his successor than his learned son, and this is strongly evidenced by the action of the counties named. Jo M. Kendall is thirty one years of age, has a liberal education, is a good talker and fine speaker, a lawyer by profession and a politician from preference. He embodies every essential requisite to successfully carry out the plans of his lamented father, and should he succeed to the position he will wear the honor thus bestowed in a becoming, business like and dignified manner, and the indications now point to his nomination beyond question. That he should be so popular with his own people is but natural, and should he reach the goal of his ambition they feel that they can point with pride to his career in Congress.

THE announcement of Hon. Marcus C. Lisle, the present County Judge of Clark county, for Congress, to succeed the late J. W. Kendall, appears at the head of this column. Mr. Lisle is in every way qualified for the position to which he aspires, and should he be chosen to fill the vacancy the trust thus confided could not be placed in better hands. He is a young man, especially bright in native intellect, well educated in the law and learned in State craft. In short, he is the peer of any man in the district, and withal a gentleman, to honor whom is a pleasure. Where he is best known is one of the most popular young men we ever knew, being possessed of a magnetism that attracts men to him. The county of Clark is entitled to some consideration for the part she has heretofore played in our elections, and if it be the wish of the delegates in convention to accord her the honor of the nomination, our personal acquaintance with Mr. Lisle is sufficient to guarantee that the honor will have been most worthily bestowed. We invite attention to his card and the many expressions therein, and commend to our constituents a due consideration of his claims.

Gov. GRAY, of Indiana, refuses to become a candidate for Governor and thus lose his chance of the nomination for the Presidency. Gov. Gray might profit by the following soliloquy: "A bird in the hand, as you may understand, is worth forty thousand million on a tree." And, besides, when they come West for a candidate for that high place, they'll catch Carlisle.

The policy shops at Newport and Covington have been closed on account of the Goebel lottery bill recently passed by the General Assembly, and 75 to 100 clerks were thus thrown out of employment. Representative Whicker expresses the opinion that the Court of Appeals will decide that the lotteries are operating legally.

SPEAKER MOORE and ex-Speaker Myers are said to be at daggers' points, and open war between them is looked for at any time.

CORNER MILLER, a well known physician and the most popular politician in Louisville, died suddenly of heart failure Sunday night. Henry C. Miller had been Corner for fourteen years, and it was generally understood that he could hold the place against all aspirants, so popular was he with the people.

POLICY in seeking a candidate for the Presidency is all bosh. Let the Democratic party stand upon principle and put forth its best man regardless of section. And, as John G. Carlisle is intellectually head and shoulders above any other man in the party, he should be accorded the nomination.

COL. A. K. McCLELLAN, of the Philadelphia Times, and a well-posted politician, said in a speech at Charleston, S. C., recently, that David B. Hill could not carry a single Northern State should he be the Democratic nominee for President, and he sized up the situation.

We hear it rumored that there are several aspirants for the vacancy caused by the death of the lamented John W. Kendall, but at the present writing we have no positive knowledge of any but the two announced in THE HERALD.

The letter of Hon. David Sublett, of Saltersville, declining to make the race against Jo Kendall for Congress, was a manly letter from a manly man, and Dave will be remembered hereafter.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From Our Regular Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 11, '92.

War with Great Britain would not necessarily follow if this Government should decide, as it probably will, unless Lord Salisbury shall change his mind about that modus vivendi, to send a naval force to Behring Sea strong enough to seize all the poaching sealers, but it would certainly be expected, and, truth to tell, welcomed by lots of people in this country. President Harrison has sent the arbitration treaty and all the correspondence not before made public to Congress, and nothing more will probably be done until Lord Salisbury answers the communication protesting against his declining to renew the modus vivendi, which, although signed by Mr. Wharton, who is acting Secretary of State during Secretary Blaine's illness, was written by President Harrison and unanimously approved by a Cabinet meeting. It is written in the smooth language of diplomacy, but Lord Salisbury will have no difficulty in reading between the lines the expressed determination to maintain at all hazards the position taken from the first.

In the Senate there is a very decided disposition to retaliate upon Canada should Lord Salisbury adhere to his refusal to renew the modus vivendi, in fact there would be little or no difficulty in getting the sanction of a majority of the Senate to an open declaration of war against Great Britain, so intense is the feeling against the government of that country.

A large number of petitions from the Farmer's Alliance in various sections of the country asking for legislation in accordance with the principles of that organization, were presented to Congress this week. The Pure Food bill, which has been advocated by Representatives of that organization, was passed by the Senate.

Commodore Folger, Chief of the Ordnance Bureau on the Navy, who is in charge of the gun shops at the Washington navy yard, testified before the subcommittee of the House Committee on Labor last week on the advantages of the eight hour law, as did also Col. Ernst and Gen. Casey, of the Engineer Corps of the Army; but Commodore Folger's statements were much the strongest—in fact no stronger argument was ever made in favor of the eight hour system than his statement of how it works on his department. He said that he believed it would be a great blessing if the system were universally adopted, that the labor and work would be improved; that at the Washington navy yard he was turning out better and cheaper guns under eight hours work per day than the contractors were doing under the ten hour system.

The River and Harbor Committee will grant no more hearings, as its members are already committed to appropriations that will make the bill carry about $20,000,000, and they fear to run it any higher. The river and harbor bill is, to speak paradoxically, both popular and unpopular. It is popular in those sections which get or expect to get appropriations for the improvement of their rivers and harbors, and unpopular in the sections which have neither rivers nor harbors to be improved. "You tickle me and I'll tickle you" is the principle upon which it is made up and passed.

The United States Patent Office is the one branch of Uncle Sam's business establishment carried on at a profit, it having earnings to its credit in the treasury of about $4,000,000, a portion of which one patent commissioner after another has begged Congress to spend in giving the office room enough to transact its business properly. Congress has turned a deaf ear to these appeals, and now the manufacturers, inventors, owners of patents and others who find it helpful to get copies of patents are to suffer for the negligence of Congress, as will be seen by the following which is a copy of a letter sent to all applicants for copies of patents: "The Patent Office regrets that, in consequence of want of room for the storage and arrangement of printed copies of patents, it will be impossible to fill your order in current issues until additional room is provided by the proper authorities." This ought to bring the blush of shame to the face of every member of Congress.

The large vote by which the resolution setting aside three days from March 23d for the consideration of the Bland free coinage bill was adopted by the House has removed the last vestige of doubt about the passage of that bill. It is now only a question of how large the majority will be.

After many postponements on account of sickness, and once on account of the death of Representative Kendall, of Kentucky, the tariff debate has at last got under way. When it will end no one can say, as a great many members want to make speeches on it; but the present programme is to take a vote on the free wood bill on the 21st inst. Then, after the free coinage bill is passed, another tariff bill will be called up.

And a good lamp must be simple; when it is not simple it is not good. Simple, Beautiful, Good—these words mean much, but to see "The Rochester" will impress the truth more forcibly. All metal, tough and seamless, and made in three pieces only, it is absolutely safe and unbreakable. Like Aladdin's of old, it is indeed a "wonderful lamp," for its marvelous light is purer and brighter than gas light, softer than electric light and more cheerful than either.

Look for this lamp. The Rochester. If the lamp dealer hasn't the genuine Rochester, and the store you want to send to us our new illustrated catalogue, we will send you a lamp safely by express—your choice of over 4,000 varieties from the Largest Lamp Store in the World.

Do You Need Money?

If so, you can get something better than dollars from us. The completion of the K. U. R. R. to Jackson has cut us off from a large wholesale trade heretofore had by us in several counties east, and left on our hands an immense stock of goods, which we are compelled to unload, and in order to do so we are determined to make prices do the work, prices which will make our patrons happy and make competition howl. We offer to Country Merchants extra inducements, and guarantee to them lower prices than they ever got before. We are overstocked and must unload. Remember we will duplicate any bill, with freights added, either wholesale or retail, east or west, north or south, up hill or down. We are now receiving such lines, bought for at bottom bargains, as will fill every department. New, fresh, seasonable, choice and cheap. We can astonish you with

At the Senatorial Convention, held in Hazel Green, Ky., on March 15, 1892, Hon. Joe M. Kash was elected Chairman and Dr. J. A. Taulbee Secretary.

The following delegates were present: Col. J. P. Salyer, B. M. Carr, Hon. J. M. Pieratt, J. M. Ingram, Wm. M. Kendall, J. Reb Kendall, S. H. Taulbee, Mason Jones, John M. Rose, H. F. Pieratt, J. T. Day, Gardner Jones, Sam Swango, Wm. Tyler, W. T. Swango, J. H. Pieratt, R. D. Motley, J. H. Evans, O. W. Cecil, J. W. Cravens, John Robeson, Tom Peltry, Murrell Tyler, Ellis Johnson, Lee Patrick.

On motion of Col. John P. Salyer, seconded by B. M. Carr, A. H. Hargis, of Breathitt County, was nominated by acclamation as the Democratic candidate to succeed his father, John S. Hargis, deceased, in the Senate of Kentucky.

The Chairman appointed Dr. J. A. Taulbee, Hon. Wm. M. Kendall and Col. John P. Salyer to notify Mr. Hargis of his nomination.

Hazel Green, Ky., March 16, '92. HON. A. H. HARGIS, Jackson, Ky.

Dear Sir:—Having been commissioned by the Democratic Senatorial Convention, this day held in this place, to nominate a candidate to fill the unexpired term of your lamented father, Hon. John S. Hargis, in the Senate of Kentucky, to inform you of the action of said Convention, beg leave to say that you were, by acclamation, nominated as the Democratic candidate to succeed your father, and we trust and feel that you will not hesitate to carry the banner of Democracy to victory at the polls.

J. A. TAULBEE, W. M. KENDALL, JOHN P. SALYER, Committee.

On motion of Col. John P. Salyer, seconded by Hon. John M. Pieratt, of Morgan, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we sincerely regret the death of John W. Kendall, our Representative in Congress, and commend to the Democracy of this Congressional District his son, Joe M. Kendall, of the county of Floyd as an honest man, a true Democrat, and one in every way worthy to fill the unexpired term of his lamented father.

The Convention then adjourned sine die. JOE M. KASH, Chairman.

DR. J. A. TAULBEE, Sec'y.

Breeders of this section may see the pictures of two of the greatest trotting sires in Kentucky by calling at this office. They are Fayette Wilkes and Bermuda, respectively, and those interested in trotting horses are respectfully invited to call and take a peep at them, and they will then be convinced that they are the horses you wish to breed to.

J. T. Day and wife and little daughter, Daisy, left Thursday morning for Mt. Sterling, where Mrs. Day and Daisy will spend a short time visiting relatives. Mr. Day will go on to Cincinnati and Louisville, where he will purchase the largest stock of goods ever brought to the mountains.

There is every probability that the Republicans will spring a candidate for State Senator next Monday in the hope that they can slip their man in by reason of Democratic lethargy. Be on your guard, Democrats, and see that the full strength of your precinct is polled for A. H. Hargis.

Philp Winn told us while here a few days since that the bank with which he is connected—the Winchester—had $50,000 to $90,000 more deposits than any bank in Winchester. It pays to advertise, and especially in THE HERALD.

The following gentlemen were here as delegates from Morgan county on Wednesday last: Col. John P. Salyer, Hon. W. M. Kendall, ex-State Senator J. M. Pieratt, Sheriff Ben Carr, Deputy Sheriff J. M. Ingram and J. Reb Kendall.

Our old friend, P. B. Winn, of Winchester, was here Sunday and Monday in the interest of the candidacy of Judge M. C. Lisle, and that he did the latter much good by coming is everywhere apparent.

Jeff Wells and wife, the latter a sister of W. T. Caskey, are visiting Uncle Bill's Caskey on Grassy. It is the first time Mr. Wells and wife have been here for twenty years. Their home is in Missouri.

Don't you owe us for THE HERALD? If so, please call and settle, or send the amount to us at once. We need it!

POULTRY HOUSE HEATER.

The Clever Device Invented by a New Jersey Woman.

The design of a cheap poultry house heater, by Miss Hattie Seely, Hammon, N. J., is not only novel, but it is a contrivance that costs so little and can be so quickly and easily arranged, as to commend itself at a glance. An ordinary lamp having a tin chimney, with a piece of mica in front of the chimney (so as to slow the flame), is surrounded by an ordinary stovepipe (the larger the pipe the better), or a sheet-iron or tin pipe may be made for the purpose, a board being arranged at the bottom of the pipe, by tacking the pipe to the board, for the lamp to rest on. Or, if preferred, two cross strips may be placed at the bottom in place of the board, as it will allow more air to come in. Air holes are cut all around the pipe, so as to permit of a free circulation of air. A sliding door, or one to raise up and down, may be arranged for placing the lamp in the pipe, or for taking it out for filling, or the bottom strips may be arranged for that purpose. No solder is used—all the parts should be riveted. At the top is a cross-piece, also made of iron or tin, the arrows indicating the direction of the heat. The heater may be hung up by wire (which is attached to the hook shown on top) from the roof, but within three feet of the floor, to prevent interference or contact by the fowls. If preferred, the heater may rest on the floor, but should then be protected by a wire cage to protect against the hens. Any kind of lamp, or small coal-oil stove may be used, but the chimney should be of tin, riveted (not soldered). It is best to have the whole heater made by a tinner, of tin or sheet-iron, and about ten inches in diameter and twenty inches high, the crosspiece being also twenty inches long, but stove-pipe may be used over a small lamp. In place of the crosspiece, a tin plate may rest on wire pegs, raised three inches over the top of the pipe, to allow of free draught. By this arrangement, the heat is distributed in both directions from the center of the poultry house. It is only necessary to keep the fire burning in the stove, and the house will also be kept dry. There will be no injury from foul air or carbonic acid gas, as plenty of air will always find its way in. This heater may be used only on cold nights.—Farm and Fireside.

POULTRY IN WINTER.

The Kind of Feeding That Will Assure Satisfactory Results.

In the morning give the fowls a warm breakfast, prepared the evening previous by cutting up a bunch of clover hay in half-inch lengths, using a cutter made for the purpose. To this cut hay add one quart of cornmeal and two quarts of bran; seal with boiling water and let it stand overnight, covered with a piece of old carpet or burlap. Before feeding it in the morning stir the whole mass thoroughly together, and while it is warm place it in the feed troughs. At first they eat sparingly, but in a few days they will clean it all up nicely and very quickly. After this feed they will sing merrily and be very happy, and a little later their crooning will be changed to the staccato cackle which announces the much coveted eggs. At dinner time two quarts of wheat may be scattered among the litter, and the fowls will scramble to get at them with a keen relish. In the evening, before they go to their roosts, give them a feed of whole corn which furnishes employment to their digestive machinery during the night, and supplies the needed heat while inclosed. This promotes a comfortable night's rest which poultry need as well as man.

Twice a week change the morning feed. On the cut clover hay, and give them a warm mess composed of mashed boiled potatoes, turnips, beef scraps and dissolved pork cracklings, some corn meal and wheat bran, all thoroughly mixed and fed warm (not hot). This supplies the variety necessary to health. The beef scraps and pork cracklings supply animal food in place of the worms and bugs they get while at liberty. Occasionally give them corn and oats ground together in place of pure corn meal.—American Agriculturist.

At no time is it desirable to feed poultry an exclusive grain diet; they need more bulky food.

ROAD IMPROVEMENT.

Bad Highways Are a Source of Great Loss and Annoyance.

Under present conditions in most localities it is the farmer that loses most by bad roads. It is his teams that do most of the heavy hauling on the roads in getting his crops to market. Before so many railroads were built merchants, millers and others in towns and cities were obliged to do a considerable amount of hauling, but a large portion of this is avoided now, and the farmer is perhaps more interested in good roads than any others. He must use the roads all through the year, and it is often the case when the farmers should use them to the best advantage they are in the worst condition. Bad roads often prevent the farmer from taking advantage of a favorable time to market his crops. He must sell when the roads are good, so that he can haul, and in consequence his products are forced upon the market during the latter part of summer or early fall, whether they are in demand or not. They are often bought and held until there is a better demand, and then they are sold at a low profit.

With better roads, so that farmers could be sure of marketing at any time, more or less of the products could be stored and put on the market more advantageously. The extra wear and tear of the teams, wagons and horses caused by bad roads is an important item of expense, which, if it could be saved and applied towards keeping up the roads, would pay a good part of the expense.

One objection to the present system of road work is that we fail to get value received. The cost is made seemingly light, but in great majority of cases better work could be done at half the expense with better management. Experience has proved that the cost of making good roads is readily repaid by the increased value of the farming land near it. Yet many are hard to convince that it is profitable to go to the expense of building good roads. But when well built they are never allowed to run down.

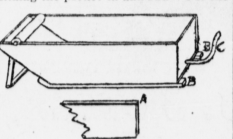

It would hardly be possible to undertake to make all the roads good at once, but if all the money spent by a county on roads scattered all over the country, a good part of it might be practically thrown away, was concentrated only on such a length as could be made thoroughly good, we should have good roads in a much less time than we will under the present system.

During the winter is a good time to consider this question. The roads themselves usually supply a good argument and the farmer has more time to think and talk it over.—St. Louis Republic.

PRIZE HOG TROUGH.

An Excellent Tank for Sealing Hogs of Large Size.

To seal hogs of 400 to 600 pounds a concrete tub is inadequate. Nothing is better than the tank or trough shown. It should be made of 10-foot plank 2 inches thick. These should be planed smooth on all sides and edges and put together with 4-inch screws, or still better, 4-inch screws. Each joint should be painted with thick lead and oil, and tightened by a piece of candle wax saturated in the same string on the edge of the joining plank before it is put together, the reeking wax to be held straight by being stretched on a small nail at each end. Let it be nearest the inside of the tank as on the bit of plank shown. A 12-inch wick. The bottom of one end of the trough is beveled to facilitate the work of sliding the porker in and out. For the same purpose a roller placed as shown is a great aid, and also for turning the hog over for complete scalding. A frame is hinged to the under side of the beveled end to support it while the hog is being drawn out. This can be buttoned closed, and the trough which it is not in use. For transporting it use a stone boat, or rude runners may be built permanently on the bottom of the trough for it to ride upon. Sled shoes will do, as at H. A. piece of inch hose, C. is forced through an auger hole at the bottom and is used for the double purpose of heating the water by steam from a cauldron with a light fire, to which the hose is attached, and for draining the tank when the scalding is done. If the free end of the hose is kept at the height of the top of the tub or higher no water will escape. Thorough scalding, all labor of emptying it is dispensed with. The scalding platform is arranged at the beveled end.—N. E. Homestead.

How to Make Meat Quickly.

Though known as a fact by the experience of farmers it has also been established by experiments made for that purpose that the per cent. of food consumed by the animal as an animal increases in size. In other words, the larger the animal the greater the amount of food required to make a pound of meat. The cheapest and most meat made is from young animals that are well fed, rapidly pushed from birth and sold as soon as they reach the proper size.

The February Wide Awake

Comes promptly to hand with an exceedingly varied and entertaining list of contents. We wonder if the parents of our boys and girls really know what an excellent and absorbing story Mrs. Mary McIntosh Cox is giving us in her serial "Jack Breton's Three Months' Service." While the young people read it with growing interest and imbibe lessons in honor, manliness and devotion to duty from its stirring incidents, not one of the older generation but can live again the dramatic scenes of 1861 which it portrays, when homes were rent and anxious hearts were over-strained. The story appeals to all. So, too, though in a different way, does the Arabian story of pluck and endurance, "The Lance of Kaniama," thrill its readers month by month. The camel race over the desert described in the February number is full of a force and fire that stirs the blood of every reader. Among the important contributions to the February Wide Awake is the last story, "The Sign of the Prophet," written by Eliot McCormick, one of New York's promising newspaper men, untimely cut off by death scarcely six months since. Mrs. Harriet Maxwell-Converse has another of her interesting Indian articles, "With Seventy Chiefs at Oshewakan." Mrs. Maud Howe Elliott talks delightfully about "Some Horses that I have known." Mrs. Jane Austen gives the charming story of "Lora Standish's Sampler," of which all readers of "Standish of Standish" and "Betty Alden" will be glad to know more. Lovers of adventure will enjoy Lieut. Col. Thorndike's thrilling experience "In the Straits of Cape Horn." Harriet Pickney Huse's sketch of a storm "On a Florida Reef," and Henry Cleveland Woods' Kennebec story "Under the Fire." Dorothy Holcomb's "Writings-down" about "The Night of the Fire" will raise the ready smile. "The First Steamboat" and "A Pet Snake" are short interesting papers, and the department "Men and Things" is full of readable items. The poetry of the number is excellent. The pictures in the number are illustrative and characteristic, and the feeling that the children of this generation who have the possibilities of regularly reading so helpful and elevating a magazine as Wide Awake are blessed indeed, is emphasized again by a perusal of the February issue.

WIDE AWAKE is published at 20 cents per number, $2.40 per year.

Two Faithful Friends.
The Paris Kentuckian-Citizen says: "It is known that George C. Lockhart, nominated, had selected Hon. G. C. Lockhart for the Judgeship (Superior Court), knowing him personally, and recognizing in him a man eminently fitted for the position."

In the face of this, Mr. Lockhart came to Frankfort and personally appealed to the Governor to appoint his friend Judge Brent, and the Kentuckian-Citizen says: "It was a worthy and gracious act, and reflects great credit upon him."

In 1878 the writer of this went with the late Col. Phil Lee to ask of Gov. Leslie the appointment of the late Gen. Wm. L. Jackson, of Louisville, to the vacancy in the Judgeship of the Jefferson Circuit Court. Before we could make known our mission, Gov. Leslie surprised us by saying that he had made up his mind to appoint Col. Lee to the vacancy, he being at the time the Commonwealth's Attorney for the district. The gentleman and true friend never wavered for a moment, but promptly declined, telling Gov. Leslie that he had come to recommend Gen. Jackson, and could, under no circumstances, accept the position he sought for his eminent friend who was so admirably equipped for the bench.

Reluctantly the Governor accepted the declination of Col. Lee, and Gen. Jackson was appointed, serving until his death, a number of years later. A weaker man, a less faithful friend than Col. Lee or Mr. Lockhart, in either of these instances, would have thrown his le friend and taken the office that came unlooked for. Such incidents sweeten the odor of life in this business and material age.—Frankfort Capital.

Catarrh Can't Be Cured
With local applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you have to take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and directly reaches the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is no quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is now a prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients of Hall's Catarrh Cure produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials free.

Overworked Adjectives.

That our list of adjectives is inadequate to supply the demands is plainly apparent when it becomes necessary to rob the Deity of his attributes to supply the deficiency. When it is common to remark the "divine" Father, or that; that Mrs. Deacon is "divinely" fair; that some debutante was arrayed in one of Worth's "creations," and like exaggerated assertions, the ones whose vocabulary does not include such adjectives applicable to the "heavens above, the earth beneath and the waters under the earth," "isn't in it," so to speak. The public ear isn't so easily deceived, however, point to a reaction—men and women are gradually taking the place of ladies and gentlemen and in some remote quarters subdued speech is not altogether indicative of ignorance and had form. So far, therefore, from despairing at the paucity of the language, there is hope that we may finally be saved from the necessity of resorting to such expedients in order to be fully understood. Nelson Record.

"I have just recovered from a second attack of the grip this year," says Mr. J. O. Jones, publisher of the Leader, Mexico, Texas. "In the latter case I used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and I think with considerable success, only being in bed a little over two days against ten for the first attack. The second attack I am satisfied would have been as bad as the first but for the use of this remedy, as I had to go to bed in about six hours after being 'struck' with it, while in the first case I was able to attend to business about two days after getting 'down.'" 50 cent bottles for sale by Rose & Jones.

Hill and Tammany.

A special from Washington says: "The defeat of David B. Hill in his rotten borough of Elmira, has occasioned a goodly degree of agitation among those Congressmen who have offered David the votes of their States in the Chicago Convention, and the votes of Ohio are yet more significant. The spring elections so far held in New York show a Democratic loss of 110 Supervisors, and these same Supervisors have a great deal to do with the counting of the votes. There is a fear that Hill and Tammany have not got New York nailed down after all. Before the beginning of April the silver question is liable to be before the Senate, and before the assembly of the National Democratic Convention, Mr. Hill will be called upon to face it, and will be occasion for a fight in France named Bou langer."

Messrs. Cope & Sherman, of Alexander, Texas, writes us regarding a remarkable cure of rheumatism thus as follows: "The wife of Mr. Wm. Pruitt, the postmaster here, had been bed-ridden with rheumatism for several years. She could get nothing to do her any good. We sold her a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and she was completely cured by its use. We refer you to her to verify this statement." 50 cent bottles for sale by Rose & Jones.

If you wish to retain love of your best girl never let her see dirt in your ears or under her finger-nails, and always keep your teeth clean.

Valuable Holes in the Ground.

Strolling about Virginia City, Nev., some scores of years ago, pointing to a black cavity in the ground, said to John Ruess Young: "Out of that hole I can sell $150,000,000 in silver bullion. This was one of the famous Bonanza mines. And the day of the Bonanzas are not all passed and gone. A telegram says the Mollie Gibson mine, at Aspen, Col., will make dividends of $3,840,000 for March, and the Kerrits mine, at Leadville, for April, breaking all previous records of all the silver mines of the earth. Mollie could well afford to chip in $100,000 for the campaign fund of Bryan and make seventy cents worth of silver pass for one hundred cents in gold.—Louisville Times.

The New Dictionary.

The answer of the publishers of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary to the attempt of pirates to steal their thunder by issuing cheap phototype reproductions of the ninth edition of 1847, is the publication of a new and completely revised and enlarged edition of the authentic Unabridged, which as a distinguished writer bears the name of international.

The publishers have expended in the last ten years over $300,000 in the preparation of this new book before issuing the first copy, and the improvements of the various editions since that of 1847 have cost over three-fourths of a million of dollars for editing, illustrating, typesetting and electrotyping.

The new Dictionary is the best book of its kind in the English language. It unlocks mysteries, resolves doubts, and decides disputes. The possession of it and the habit of consulting it will tend to promote knowledge, literary taste and social refinement. For every family, and members of which have mastered reading, the purchase of Webster's International Dictionary will prove a profitable investment, and the more they advance in knowledge and cultivation, the more they will appreciate its aid and worth.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by the purchase of Webster's International Dictionary will prove a profitable investment, and the more they advance in knowledge and cultivation, the more they will appreciate its aid and worth.

That Speech.

Before Senator Hill abandoned his tour of the South, and when he contemplated visiting Frankfort, he asked a Kentucky Democrat the best kind of a speech to make in that State. He said: "I will tell you what the man questioned: 'make a red hot Democratic speech and give the Mugwumps hell. Then I know that if you fall to make any converts, you will certainly not make any enemies for life or believe there is a Mugwump in Kentucky.'"

Make the Mayor Recorder.

The Lexington Leader advocates a proposition to have the new charter of that city abolish the Board of Aldermen, which it denominates a "useless fixture," and merge the offices of Mayor and Recorder into one. The tendency of the past few years in Lexington, says the Leader, has been to establish securities by multiplying offices. The Leader takes no thought of the danger that too much pruning may destroy politics as a profitable industry, and may crowd an excess of cheap and unskilled labor into other occupations.—Courier Journal.

From Prison to Insane Asylum.

Thomas Disney, a convict sent in 1887 from the County Jail for the murder of George Peters, was last week adjudged a lunatic before County Judge Williams, of Frankfort. He was thereupon paroled out of the penitentiary by Governor Wallace, and ordered to be sent to the asylum at Lexington. Disney's mania is religion, and for nearly five weeks since he was first suspected he has been in the asylum, and in the meantime he has a brother in the Anchorage Asylum and many relatives from his home county of Knox in the Lexington Asylum.

There is no danger from whooping cough when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is freely given. It breaks the tough, tenacious mucus and aids in its expectoration. It also lessens the severity and frequency of the paroxysms of coughing, and insures a speedy recovery. There is not the least danger in giving it to children or babies, as it contains no injurious substance. 50 cent bottles for sale by Rose & Jones.
